Students impatiently hurry up the sidewalk from the parking lot, ready and willing to begin another enlightening day at Elkhorn High School.

The Familiar Routine

Mrs. Ihlenfeldt distributes books to students at the Dutch door, a new facility at EHS.

Variety is not always the spice of life. Going steady is certainly not variety yet it does bring about frequent changes in the every-day routines of the school.

Michele Adsit and Walter Joost wait hungerly in the lunch line for their noon meal. Eat hardy kids, it's a long time until supper!

Getting absentee slips is another facet of school life. Kathy Welch is hoping Mr. Wolf will check her off as an excused absence for being ill . . . ?

Provides the Setting for

EHS's Invisible Rabbit, Harvey, watches with unseen interest as the arrival of the first bus at 7:00 a.m. unofficially starts the typical schoolday at Elkhorn High School. He sees students increase, coming by bus, car, or on foot. He notices that many students use the time before classes to study for tests, complete everyday homework assignments, or get special help from their teachers, while others have time only to get their books and make it to their first hour classes. The Invisible Rabbit rings the first bell at 8:10 and watches the confusion he creates as the day officially starts, bringing teachers from the teachers' lounge, where they were enjoying their last minutes of peace, and bring late students running.

Harvey listens for the many noises that follow the temporary lull as the classes settle down--the monitors collecting attendance slips, the band tuning their instruments, the gym classes going through the lower halls to the small gym, the banging of typewriter keys, students

John Cory and Bill Gillmore seem to be involved in very important conversation. "ye olde railing" remains as a meeting place during the noon hour, despite cold weather and snow.

"All work and no play . . . " Mixers provide fun and entertainment after a tense game. Al Narish and Pam Henning demonstrate the latest dancing techniques.

"Hear ye! Hear he!" Joan Hummel replaces "ye olde towne crier" of by-gone days by use of the public address system. The announcements enable the school body to receive pertinent information.

All Phases of School Life

going through the halls on passes, and since this is an election year, he hears occasional lively conversations on politics coming from the various social science classes. All lulls are shattered after 55 minutes of classes when Harvey faithfully rings the dismissal bells, releasing students for the three minutes they are allowed to have between classes.

The Invisible Rabbit's noon bell causes pandemonium, with many students racing illegally down the halls to get the better positions in the hot lunch line or the milk line. Some students bring their lunches, eating in the gym bleachers for lack of cafeteria space, those who live in town often go home to eat, and some go uptown to buy their lunches. Because they are cut short this year, Harvey sees much locker doors slam in the hoards scatter out the hoards at his desk in Mr. This the hoards are hoards at his desk in Mr. This had scatter out the hoards at his desk in Mr. This had scatter out more bustling during the noon hours, with less time for necessary meetings, studying, and talking.

His 12:40 bell signals an end to the activity and sends students trudging to their three afternoon classes.

The omniscient Harvey observes any boredom vanish with the sounding of the 3:31 dismissal bell. It is at this time that locker doors slam in joyful unison and the hoards scatter outside the walls of EHS, unaware of the responsibility lifted off Harvey's shoulders. Now he can relax at his desk in Mr. Thieleke's room, for the only ones left in school are those working on bulletin boards, serving detentions, practicing cheerleading, and the athletes—for them, and for Harvey, school is not yet over.

Keeping an accurate record of attendance is important. Sometimes a teacher forgets to leave an attendance slip for the hall monitor to pick up. Miss Rusham is reminded of this by Lu Anne Ross

For lack of something recreational to do during noon hours, students sometimes resort to sitting on the stairs Cheryl Seibert and Daryl Fairchild spend their spare time in just such a place, talking

Sandy Baker and Cheryl White agree that lockers are good places to talk over the many activities of a school day. Could their conversation possibly be about the lack of space in lockers?

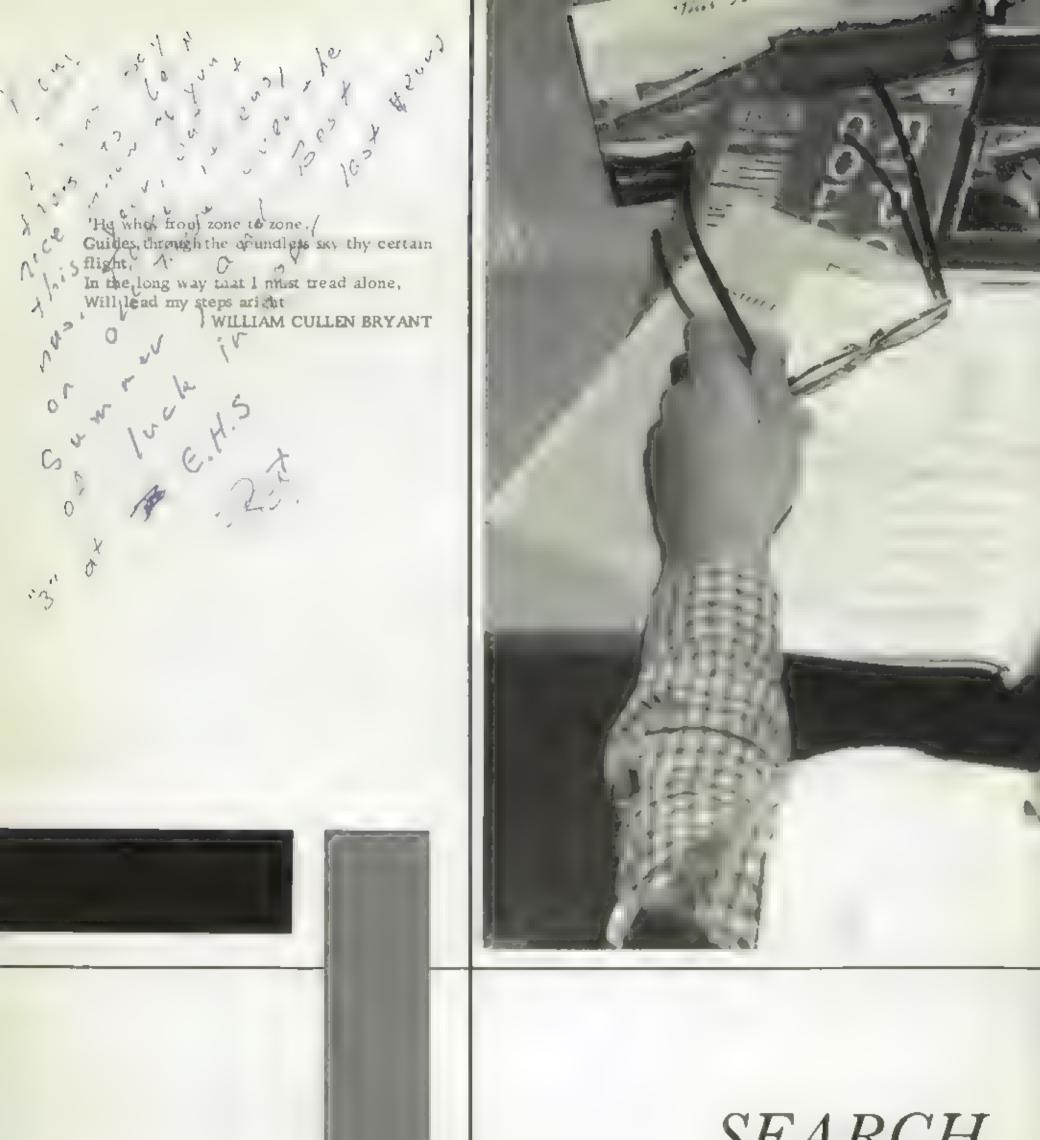

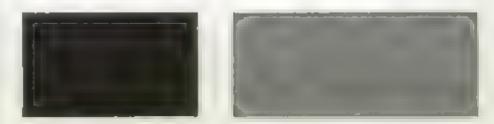

Studying is a necessary part of school life. Dennis McKenna makes use of the quietness in the library to catch up on his work

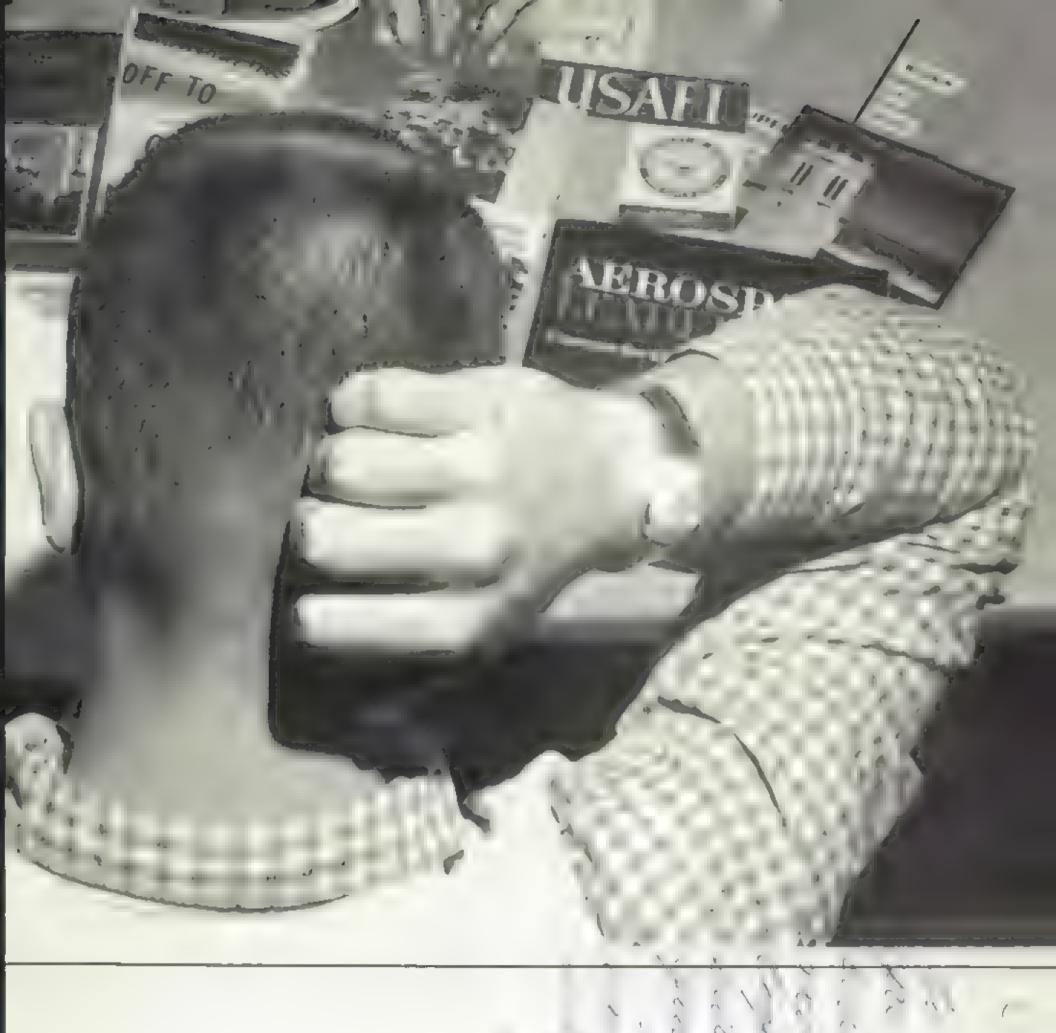

Shirley Fleming and Rick Maney show the everpresent fads that are a part of school life. The current fads are shoulder purses and dickeys

of Today and Tomorrow

The Elkhorn School System can be proud to have an administration which is effective in carrying out higher standards of education. Superintendent Robert Houg and Principal Deane Page have stressed the importance of the requirements necessary for success. The administrators' interest in each individual students wins great admiration from the student body.

The members of the Board of Education have given freely of their efforts for the new building program. Their perserverance in this project will contribute to the community a building which will be beneficial to ALL!

The Board is responsible for the selection of the faculty and school policy. The future holds bright for EHS while these capable citizens set the standards to higher levels of learning. Mr. Page and Student Council president, John Byrnes had the pleasure of introducing Senator Wm. Proxmire to the student body at a special assembly

Many people working together keep EHS operating smoothly and efficiently. The nucleus of our operation begins in the office where "busy" secretaries attend to student records, daily attendance, issue report cards, sell tickets for "hot lunch" and athletic events, duplicate various materials and order supplies to mention only the routine items.

For the counsel-seeking student, trainedguidance counselors help select educational avenues which are tailored to fit the individual. Administering prognostic, personality, aptitude and skill tests at various levels aid the counselors in understanding the student's abilities and talents.

Unlimited knowledge abounds in the many research materials found in the stacks of the library. Librarians are responsible for the tedious task of ordering, preparing and maintaining these materials for student use.

Coordinating our health program is a registered nurse, Mrs. Rada Kohl. Her duties include checking on absences due to illness, holding health clinics for tuberculosis skin testing, immunization, vision and hearing program and the WIAA insurance.

The responsibility of transporting students to and from school, seeing to it that they have a well-balanced meal at noon and that the physical facilities are in operating order is that of our bus drivers, cooks and janitors.

All these fine people make our education possible and more enjoyable.

EHS is maintained by an efficient staff of hard-working custodians. They include Mr. E. Phelps, Mr. G. Taft, Mr. P. Olivas, Mr. P. Stearns, and Mr. S. Locke

to Adventure

Monopolizing much of a student's time during his four years of high school is English which is a required subject. Freshmen study grammar and composition and are introduced to basic forms used in writing during their sophomore year. Juniors learn the analysis and construction of novels and plays while seniors study the masterpieces of noted authors from Chaucer to the present day. An elective, speech and writing provides the stage for self-expression.

Capturing the warmth and beauty of a foreign country, her culture and people is achieved through the study of a foreign language. Latin, French and Spanish provide opportunities to many adventures in reading and living, traveling and studying. Modern electronic equipment in the newly established language lab enables students not only to acquire the vocabulary of a foreign language but speak and write it fluently.

For the first time at EHS, the math department has offered a Math V course. This class consists of seniors who took algebra in eighth grade and continued on with mathematics throughout high school. The course briefly covers material on the freshman and sophomore college levels. In a few years, though, Math V will be replaced by modern math which was started this year in algebra I and will be extended into the higher levels of math in the coming years.

A unique feature of our science department is the Science Fair, which is held in the spring of the year. Any student may participate by entering a project dealing with any of the sciences. There are two classes, one for freshmen-sophomores and the other for juniors-seniors. Awards are made to each class on a point system.

A new practice started by the chemistry classes this year was the excursion to Argonne National Laboratory, Argonne, Illinois. This trip helped the students in their study of atomic research.

Advanced Algebra provides moments of confusion for some while it challenges all. Curt Quass and Betty Woodford (SEATED) question the solution to a problem presented by Mike Shaw, Laura Gianola and Daryl Fairchild during an afternoon session.

FOR FRIENDSHIP

One of the most exciting events of any Homecoming week-end is the game. This year the Elks tangled with the Badgers of Lake Geneva. Although we lost, the team showed true football spirit.

Elks Routed by Badgers

Alumni and students together looked forward to the fall festivities of Homecoming 1964. A week of preparation forced the neglect of homework and the rise of class spirit; for much time and energy went into the creation of both floats and skits.

Thursday night saw the first in the series of events. The gym was crowded as the class skits began. Following their conclusion, Mr. Dan Helgert and Miss Fran Cantwell were introduced as this year's King and Queen. At the same time they were presented with tokens for the memorable occasion.

After the indoor-activities were finished, the crowd was maneuvered outside where they carpeted the football field. The cheerleaders manipulated the many voices into one lively sound as they cheered their team on with rising hopes of victory.

Mr. Dan Kelliher then generously sponsored a free show. The traditional snake dance terminated at the theater's doors.

Friday afternoon came and with it early dismissal in order to see the next part of the Homecoming spectacle. A typical autumn day gave way to the sounds of snappy marches and the colors of a parde. Each class displayed their original float entry.

With decorated goal posts the all-important game began, the Badgers of Lake Geneva were to challenge the Elkhorn power. The half-time show was awaited anxiously by the student body and it was accompanied by tears of joy and disappointment when it was announced the Sophomores had taken first in the skits and the Freshmen had captured a first for their float.

The game proved to be a disappointment with the Badgers coming out on top. But the spirit had risen and even after the defeat the students were reluctant to give it up.

A dance followed the game, with the Royalty reigning and leading the Grand March. Seniors and their dates helped to make the march a new addition to the dance.

At 11:30 the dance ended and Homecoming, October 2, 1964, then became a memory to be filed for future reference in the minds and hearts of many.

"O Come All Ye Faithful." The real meaning of Christmas was not forgotten at Elkhorn High School when both the junior and senior high school bands and chorus participated in the annual Christmas concert.

The Glow of Christmas

The freshmen showed that age does not affect ingenuity as they recreated the immortal scene of "The Friendly Beasts."

"The Littlest Angel" was the theme used by the sophomores for their Christmas decorations. The class spent much time on this endeavor.

The Class of 1966 illustrated their artistic ability in "Twas the Night Before Christmas." They placed first among the classes for the best decorated room.

An inspirational atmosphere was created by the Senior Class' portrayal of "Why the Chimes Rang." Hard work and cooperation contributed to make this room

Prevailed at E.H.S.

As always, the Christmas spirit was abundant at Elkhorn High School this year. The festivities were started by the announcement of the fourth annual Christmas decorating contest between the classes. After five days of hard work on their room, the juniors were rewarded when the winners were announced and they come out on top with their colorful display of "Twas the Night Before Christmas." The seniors' contrasting "Why the Chimes Rang" was second-ranking, while the freshmen placed third with their theme, "The Friendly Beasts," and the sophomores' "The Littlest Angel" took fourth place.

To add to the Yuletide spirit of EHS, the band and chorus presented their annual Christmas concert on December 15 to an unusually large audience. A major difference this year was that the high school only used half its band, but the quality was improved because of this. The junior high band and chorus both participated, and the combination of all their talent created a true Christmas mood.

"God bless us everyone," said Tiny Tim, which could be the feeling of all people at EHS after seeing "A Christmas Carol" put on by members of the Junior class

Stormy Weather Outside,

Much time is spent in "behind the scenes" work in preparing for a dance. Patty Ives, Penny Recknagel, and Sharon Schmitt help in the decorations.

Wonderland Inside

The annual Snowball Dance co-sponsored by the FHA and FFA got under way at 8:00 on January 23. Many couples showed up in the Kinne Gym, despite the rainy weather conditions that made driving hazardous.

The theme for this year's dance was "Wonderland by Night." A bridge with a stream flowing under it was the center attraction. The decorations were complemented by a false ceiling and pine trees.

The court practiced the week before the dance and the Saturday of the dance, while the decorating for the evening was being completed.

The high point of the event came midway through the dance when King Bill Schulz and Queen Melodie Benoy and their court were presented.

The music was provided by the Bud Wilbur's Orchestra and dancing to their melodies continued until 11:00 when the first phase of this night to remember was terminated.

An empty table served as a reminder of the weather outside which kept attendance down and prompted early departures.

A Rapturous Feeling

Reigning over the 1964 Junior Prom was Queen Mary Paddock and King Roy Dunbar.

An enchanting evening in the "deep south" never to be forgotten was April 29, 1964 when the Mississippi steamer docked in the Kinne Gym.

Coordinating their talents, the Class of 1965 planned, constructed and elaborately executed their theme of "Twilight in the South" for their Junior Prom. Reigning over the gala affair were King Roy Dunbar, selected by his classmates, and Queen Mary Paddock chosen by the king.

Dancing to the melodies of Bob Lindemannand his orchestra, prom goers enjoyed the royal treatment in a truly atmospheric setting which included soft "moonlight" lighting and moss covered trees. Climax to the evening was the post prom party sponsored by the VFW post of Elkhorn.

The Class of '65 turned out in large numbers to help decorate for the Junior Prom. Sally Keegan and Ton Enloe do their part in making this dance a huge success.

"Practice makes perfect." Fran Cantwell and Jim Conohan practice for court to make "Twilight In the South" a gala event.

Reigned Over All

'We could have danced all night," seemed to be the feeling of those people attending the Junior Prom

Bill Sommer and Cindy White leave the dance with the sentiments of "a good time was had by all" and head for the Post-Prom Party sponsored by the VFW.

As juniors, the class of 1965 enthusias-tically accepted the challenge and presented their interpretation of the comedy "Meet Corliss Archer." Rehearsals were well under way when the director, Mr. James Wehner, found himself in bed with the measles. This however did not stop the play. Assistant director, Miss Katherine Hintgen stepped in to lend a much needed hand. The play went on Friday night, May 1st, with everyone prepared and in high spirits. The curtains closed with a hardy applause of approval for a job well done.

In the fall of 1964 as seniors, the class took to the stage once again to present "Take Care of My Little Girls." After many long hours attempting to learn lines, the play began to take shape when Mr. Wehner developed pneumonia and was hospitalized. With only four days of rehearsal left, Miss Ost, assistant director; Kathy Welch, student director; Mrs. Kehoe and other faculty advisers came to the rescue. Determined that the show must go on the senior class was incited to try even harder. The curtains rose November 17 as scheduled and efforts were not in vain; the play was a huge success, proving the capability of the class to handle responsibility and overcome their handicaps in the best tradition of the theater.

the Elkhorn High School band under the direction of Mr. Ralph Hughes offers a very challenging program. It is very active in school functions and takes many out of town trips as well.

The bandsmen are divided into bands which alternate rehearsal days. The first of these, the concert band, includes all the students in the band. It marches at home football games, gives several concerts each year, and competes in the district band contest. The second band, the wind ensemble, affords the more advanced players an opportunity to play more difficult music. It plays at the Nativity program, and presents its own concert.

The band also has several extra-curricular organizations. The first of these is Pep Band, made up of volunteer students who play at home basketball games. Students are awarded extra points for active membership in this band. TWIRLERS AND DRUM MAJOR -- FRONT ROW C White, M. Mitchell. ROW 2: S. Lewetenz, L. Ross, ROW 3 C. Seibert, M. Shaw, P. Jones.

of Self-Expression

The high-stepping marching band sets the pace for the annual Homecoming parade. A typical autumn day blended well to line the parade route with excited spectators.

The Tuneweavers, or Stage Band, rehearse on Wednesday nights for performances at mixers, dances, and parties. This, too, is a volunteer organization.

The solo and ensemble contest highlights the individual's hard work. Musicians compete in the local, district and state contests held in the spring. Students who do well at the local, progress to the district and a few exceptional players advance to the state tournament at Oshkosh.

The point system is utilized to give merit to those who pursue band further than normal—21 points are required for a letter in band, 38 for a silver medal, and 50 for a gold medal, the top achievement in band. The outstanding senior musician each year is awarded the John Philip Sousa Band Award.

"All This for a Song!"

The halls of Elkhorn were filled with music again as the Girls' Glee Club started a new year in full voice. Freshmen filled in the gaps left by graduation, and the result was a beautiful, harmonious effect. However, as Mr. Anderson, our choir director stated, "A lot of polish and hard work lies ahead of us."

While the glee club sang, the days flew by. Then, before they knew it, they were presenting their annual Christmas Concert before an audience of proud parents. Life was sweet, however, and applause rewarded the hard work.

With one hurdle behind them, the glee club eagerly sang their way through the Whitewater Chorus Contest, State Solo-Ensemble Contest and the spring concert.

The skills and knowledge gained through the organization not only made the year 1964-65 successful, but enriched the girls' musical lives. #### Perfecting Skills

Elkhorn High School has a great variety of clubs which are an important part of school life. Among these is the Future Homemakers of America, an organization of girls who are studying home economics.

FHA has several interesting projects. Among these are the collecting of funds for UNICEF (United Nations Children Fund) in October, the co-sponsoring of the annual Snowball dance held in January with the co-operation of the FFA, Daddy Date Night, and the annual Spring Style Show in April where members are given an opportunity to model a wide assortment of garments which they have constructed during the past year.

Membership is open to any girl who has studied home economics and the activities related to it.

for a Better Future

The Future Farmers of America, commonly known as FFA, and the Wisconsin Junior Dairymen's Association, WJDA, offer many opportunities to young men wishing to take up careers in the field of agriculture and in the practices of dairying. The main objectives are to develop the individual skills of its members which relate to farming. New and varied agricultural techniques are studied and put into use by the members.

Goals of FFA members involve perfecting and judging and exhibiting of livestock. Their main activity, in co-operation with the FHA is the sponsorship of the annual Snowball dance held in January.

The WJDA is interested mainly in the improvement of a dairy herd.

Athletics—Not Only for Boys

"Look ma, no hands!" Melissa Mitchell demonstrates the art of balancing on the parallel bars while Jeanine Dunham waits her turn. This is just one of the many activities in which GAA girls participate during the year.

One of the organizations in which girls may excel is the Girls' Athletic Association, commonly called G.A.A. At the beginning of the year, members vote on the sports they are interested in playing during the course of the year. This year's activities included speedball, basketball, volleyball, and bowling. A sports head is elected for each sport. It is her duty to organize teams, explain the rules of the game, and keep a record of games played.

The organization also participates in sports' nights at other schools. There, schools compete against each other in team sports such as basketball or volleyball.

The purpose of this organization is to promote good sportsmanship and co-operation through participation with others. Membership is open to any girl interested in sports. The advisor is Miss Schlough, who is also girls' physical education instructor.

Encouraging School Spirit

EHS's Pep Club was successfully reorganized this year under the active leadership of Miss Ost. Backing the Elkhorn team has been the work of this club, with the intention of promoting school spirit among the student body.

At Homecoming, Pep Club entered a float in the parade which rated second place among the organizations. The activity of the Pep Club was well demonstrated by the signs they made for the team. These signs had slogans and were made for every game during both football and basketball seasons. Besides this, the Pep Club sponsored a mixer and sold candy, purple and gold pom-poms, and EHS pennants, all proving that it was one of Elkhorn's most active clubs.

One of the main goals of the Pep Club is to promote school spirit at games. Kathy Bill and Avis Brueser work on banners which are hung in the gym the day of a game.

Foreign Customs

Among the organizations at EHS this year were two which dealt with the ever-important study of language. These were the Latin Club and the Spanish Club.

For all students of Latin who wished to belong, the Latin Club was reorganized under Mrs. Daggett. Among the activities of the club was the "Slave Sale" where the first year students were auctioned off to the student body for one day of grueling slavery. The club also built a float for the Homecoming parade and sponsored such events as mixers and candy sales. Part of the proceeds of these activities were donated to the American Field Service.

Spanish Club, which was newly organized this year, was under the direction of Spanish teacher. Senor Beecher. It was open to any student who had taken or was taking Spanish II, III or IV and there was an enthusiastic response. At their meetings, the members saw movies about Spain, listened to Spanish music and, on the whole, learned more about the life and culture of Spain.

Spanish Club adviser, Mr. Beecher, showed his interest in Latin by volunteering his services at the Latin Club "Slave Sale." It looks like he's riding in style. BELOW: "Anyone interested in bidding for this fine young man?"—the auctioneer, Mr. Beecher, calls out at the "Slave Sale."

Developing World Fellowship

The purpose of the American Field Service is to create an interest in the affairs of foreign countries and, through this interest, to build a bridge of friendship and fellowship between nations and peoples.

Members of the AFS sold Christmas cards once again this year to help support the club and raise money to aid in bringing a foreign exchange student to Elkhorn High School. The AFS also supported a Smorgasbord sponsored by the

Recognition of Achievements

The National Honor Society is earmarked by the qualities of leadership, scholarship, service, and character. The Elkhorn chapter is chartered by the nation-wide organization which commends students of this fiber who maintain a (2.5) gradepoint average for all full-time academic subjects.

The charter membership of twenty-seven is filled mainly by senior and junior aspirants who have the requirements of good character, activeness in home, community, school and church affairs, and who are competent and trustworthy leaders.

An induction ceremony is usually held in the early spring with a banquet following. The members receive gold pins which symbolize the virtues of a National Honor Society member.

This year's society visited various campuses and listened to lectures by professors and college officials.

Representation for All

Council representative, Terry Koglin served as chairman of the "pep badge" sale. Trudy Boardman was one of many students who purchased a badge in helping the council promote school spirit.

The 1964-65 Student Council at Elkhorn High School had as its goals for the year the challenging task of improving student-faculty relations and bettering the communications between the students and the council. The student body can be proud of all the achievements of the talent show, play day, and the carnival featuring many of the students' abilties.

Under the capable leadership of the officers and the cooperative members of the council, projects were completed successfully and many ideas were presented to the student body, bringing about more enthusiasm and spirit. Because of the superior guidance provided by Mr. Rodney Paulsen and Mr. Gary Olson, and the outstanding job of the council representatives, Elkhorn has one of the best student governments in the conference.

Students Offer Their Assistance

During the day several students known as hall monitors are situated in various parts of the building to see that things run smoothly. Greeting visitors and guiding new students is their main job, but it isn't the only one. They also pick up the attendance slips, run errands for the office, and act as "unofficial policemen" for the school. They check passes and make note of those who are rowdy and unmannerly. They also make sure that no one goes to his locker between classes, chews gum, or in general, disobeys the rules of the school.

Hall monitors may be sophomores, juniors, or seniors, and are on duty for one period per day or every other day, as their study hall schedule permits. The hall monitor system is a project of the Student Council under the direction of Mr. Rodney Paulsen. Linda Ellsworth picks up an attendance slip which will be taken to the office. This duty, performed by hall monitors, enables the office to keep accurate attendance records.

Library assistant, Jack Vavra sorts index cards of new books before filing them in the card file.

Future Teachers of America, though a small club, has a varied activity schedule. Fifteen members strong, the club held candy sales and a mixer to raise funds. These funds were used to give two scholarships to two worthy seniors who are entering the teaching profession. As a club, the members were excused from a day of school to tour the Walworth County Special School and the Wisconsin School for the Deaf at Delavan.

Assisting Mrs. Bray in the library are eight students who volunteer their time and energy to check books and magazines out to the students, sell paperback books and see to it that all books are returned to their proper place on the shelves as they are turned in by students. While they receive no monetary compensation for their service, their generosity is appreciated by all.

Students Keep City Informed

For those students at EHS interested in journalism, the Elk Broadcaster offers a chance to develop their skills. It is open to any and all students, from freshmen to seniors.

Members of the staff are chosen at the beginning of the school year, when applicants submit one article to the co-editors and supervisor for judgment. Those stories deemed acceptable permit their authors to become staff members.

Broadcaster is a cooperative venture with the Elkhorn Independent. A special section of the paper is set aside for the stories written by the student staff members about various activities occupying both students and teachers at EHS. In this way, perspective journalists have an opportunity to display their talents and enable citizens of Elkhorn to remain in contact with the school.

Showing signs of approval Nancy Ward (co-editor) and Mrs. Fischer (adviser) check the Elk Broadcaster section of the Elkhorn Independent for final results.

Hard Work and

Any yearbook's success depends on the amount of work put into it by the students. For the past three years, the ELK received a first place rating. It was the hope of the 1965 staff to meet or surpass that record.

The main purpose of an annual is to restore the many memories students share during their high school years. The ELK is no exception.

Under the assistance of Mr. Gerald Neinfeldt, students spend much time and effort in making the ELK a book that will always be remembered.

This year's ELK was helped along by Cheryl Rinehart, editor-in-chief, who attended the Journalism Clinic at the University of Wisconsin, Madison for the past two summers under scholarships provided by the Elkhorn Independent.

The students who worked on this project see the result of the many extra hours of work when the finished product is passed out to the students.

Heading for Our

An Elk player tries to make it through the line on his way to the goal-post. Will he make it?

This year's "A" squad, under head coach Neil Theileke and assistant coach Calvin Calloway completed a fairly successful season.

This year's team had much spirit and speed, but lacked two very important neccessities for a successful team--lack of size and experience. Many underclassmen found starting positions on the varsity. But the fine performance of these underclassmen gave rise to brighter hopes for next year's season.

After the final game of the season, a football banquet at the Sterlingworth Motor Inn was sponsored by the Elkhorn chapter of the Lions Club. At this time, football letters were issued to team members. Among these were seven seniors earning their second letters, seven who earned their first, and eleven were issued to underclassmen. Also, five Elks, three seniors and two juniors were elected to the all conference team.

to Victory

This year's record of the Junior Varsity football team was not an accurate representation of their potential, for their power was never quite realized.

Conditioning was a very important part of the game and the team. Guided by Coach Harry Beecher and Assistant Coach Cliff Schifelbein, Elkhorn was the best conditioned Junior Varsity team in the league.

Many new freshman players earned starting positions vacated by sophomore players who were elevated to the Varsity.

The young players did a fine job, and Elkhorn High School will not be lacking in good backs and linemen for future years. Because of good coaching, with the emphasis being placed on increased blocking, running, and tackling, Elkhorn's prospects are very bright and there will be even more spirited football being played on its field in years to come.

Coach Suchy talks over the attack while the Elks catch their breath during a time out.

AT RIGHT: The "long and short of it" sometimes has its advantages. Guy Iverson aids Jim Beaver in fixing the net so the game can progress without wasting time. Elk player, Daryl Fairchild supervises the task.

With their goals aimed high, the 1964-65 basketball team set out to uphold the excellent record established by Coach Fred Suchy's 1963-64 "cinderella" team. This team surprised not only its local fans but many throughout the state had their eyes on them. (Ed. Note: The 1964 ELK staff was also surprised in that they had completed the 1964 ELK before tournament play and was unable to cover this successful team.)

The 1963-64 Elks finished Southern Lakes Conference play in a second place tie with Badger of Lake Geneva (12-4). After a rocky road in subregional play, the Elks played tight games with Clinton, East Troy, Wms. Bay and Burlington to gain the Regional Championship. Perhaps the most exciting of all was that Elkhorn advanced to the sectionals at Waukesha where they upset Racine Park of the Big Eight conference. Prior to that game Racine had eliminated Kenosha the No. 1 ranked team in the State of Wisconsin. Unfortunately the Elk's luck ran out and they bowed to a "sharp shooting" Waukesha who advanced to the state finals at Madison.

The 1964-65 Elks were again a preseason favorite and although they had one of the tallest teams in many years, finished fourth in a very close Southern Lakes Conference race. Once again the Elks showed their tournament savvy by rolling over Mukwonago, Southern Lakes Champs 74-60. The Elks ended their season with a 53-63 loss to East Troy in regional play.

Junaor Varsity games can be just as exciting as Varsity games. The team members line up at the free throw line for some extra points. Did the ball reach its goal?

Despite a season that was only slightly above average, it's obvious that in upcoming years other Southern League conference teams will have much to fear from what is now Elkhorn's Junior Varsity basketball team.

The boys on this team are very young, mainly because many of their teammates have been promoted to Varsity positions. Although this does not give the "B" team members much experience to fall back on, it will nevertheless increase Elkhorn's chances in the years ahead which is the goal of all their training.

Though the "B" team is given less attention than the Varsity, the players put just as many hard hours of practice into their games. It is these very players who are being groomed to become Elkhorn's basketball stars in only a few short years. The Junior Varsity team under the direction of Coach J. P. Fisher and Assistant Coach Harry Beecher holds an increasingly important position in EHS's sports' life.

Jim Spencer and Rick Tully demonstrate the fine art of basketball (or is it ballet?) as Coach Jim Fisher watches in awe. This is just some of the vigorous exercise the "little Elks" get at practice.

Intramural basketball games were played during noon hours in the Kinne Gym with both boys and girls participating. This shows a boy's game in action.

The cheerleaders constitute an athletic organization consisting of six varsity and six junior varsity members. Their principle objective is to create school spirit and to lead an organized series of cheers at the high school games.

Cheerleaders take a special place in the football and basketball games. Each year, they attempt to introduce something new into their routines; this year is no exception. Each squad has worked on some gymnastic art to add a special attraction to their cheers. The varsity has put in many hours trying to perfect the flip and angel stand.

The cheerleaders' duty is to let the team know that the sports fans care about their team. It is also part of their work to control the mood of the spectators so that a good impression will reflect on Elkhorn High School.

Individual Effort for Success

Wrestling requires individual effort as well as careful watchfulness by coaches. The big question could be "Who's going to come out on top?"

Vast improvement was very evident in Elkhorn's 1964-1965 wrestling team. Now that wrestling is a well established sport at Elkhorn, the boys are getting the recognition they deserve. With the help of assistant coach Cliff Schifelbein, coach Gene Conger's team was a match for all their opponents. The return of five lettermen to the team heightened the well-founded hopes for success.

The wrestling team practiced every night after school in the small gym to polish their basic skills and develop new holds as well. Matches were held on Tuesday and Friday nights.

This year's team finished the season with a conference meet at Burlington High School, the district and regional meets at Mukwonago and Stoughton, and the finals at Madison.

Steve Burgess and Bob Pierce take part in a relay at one of the track meets. Although the track team didn't always come out on top, the boys who participated developed good sportsmanship and physical fitness.

For Freshmen, the Search

The freshmen who voted for the Elks didn't have a strong enough turnout on the field but in float competition they placed first.

The willing, but not waiting Freshman Class of EHS was 127 strong this year. They opened the year with the election of officers, who proved themselves to be good leaders of this upcoming class.

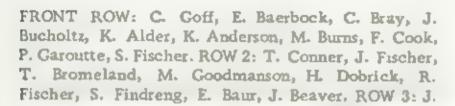

Although the Freshmen were a little lost to start with, the seniors, juniors, and sophomores joined together in welcoming the new faces in the halls of EHS. It didn't take the active freshmen long to get into the swing of high school life.

This class showed an overflowing enthusiasm for learning, being well represented on the honor roll, as well as having an interest in athletics, clubs, and other activities. It seems quite possible that their exuberance will continue to contribute to the growth of our modern world.

Through cooperation, each and every freshman can hope to remember four fulfilling years, both scholastically and socially, at Elkhorn High School.

Fun and excitement prevail during the intramural basketball games played during the noon hour.

The Sophomores Prepare

Faculty members were treated like royalty during the Christmas season at a tea sponsored by the sophomore home economics class. Trudy Boardman serves Mr. Mitchell some delicious punch.

The class of '67, winner of last year's Spirit Cup, started their sophomore year off with intentions of renewing their victory, initiating their attempt by producing the winning homecoming skit. That they planned on having a successful year was also evident from their careful election of class officers.

Since the novelty had worn off, the class of '67 settled down to play a serious role in the school life of EHS. They enthusiastically participated in many activities, adding largely to the spirit, since their enrollment of 138 makes theirs the largest class at Elkhorn.

From the ability they have shown in their first two years of high school, it is likely that this class has a bright and successful future to look forward to. If all goes as planned, the class of '67 will have the honor of being the first class to graduate from the new high school now in the planning stage. Congratulations and good luck!

The Juniors Have Found

Much hard work and practice is needed for the production of a play. The juniors take an enthusiastic approach in perfecting the play "A Christmas Carol."

The Class of 1966 approached the doors of Elkhorn High School with great anticipation. This was their Junior year and great things are expected of them. For the first time they would feel the thrill of acting and working backstage as they produced their Junior Class Play. There was also the Junior Prom to be supported. Their class rings would arrive in the fall.

But before the rings arrived, the juniors plunged into plans for Homecoming. No sooner were they finished putting the last napkin on their float, when they had to start on Christmas decorations. However, it must be noted that in spite of all their activities, the Juniors didn't forget their schoolwork, as was evident by the honor roll.

Yes, it was a successful year for the Juniors, who look forward to their Senior year with the same enthusiasm.

Although EHS didn't, the Junior Class claimed "We'll Jail 'Em, Badger Not" as they paraded their float down the main street.

"Patience is a virtue." Tom Enloe waits patiently backstage for his cue during the class of '65's presentation of "Meet Corliss Archer."

EHS opened its doors to the class of '65 with the hope that these students would go forth into the world giving it color and achievement. The class of '65 intended to do just that!

We entered high school as frightened, immature freshmen, unaware of all the problems of scheduling our studies and activities. However, the guidance provided by our faculty advisors gave us the incentive to attain higher grades and school spirit. Our class was soon recognized as butstanding both academically and in school spirit.

Our sophomore year was filled with many honors and achievements. With confidence and assurance we worked together. Our year was fulfilled with the winning of the Spirit Cup.

The most exciting and fun-filled years were yet to come. Class elections and the arrival of our class rings began our junior year with anxiety for more achievements. "Twilight in the South," our enchanted Junior Prom held on the 25th of April was the highlight of the year, and on May 1, the class successfully produced our Junior Class Play, "Meet Corliss Archer." The class was honored when John Byrnes was selected as an AFS representative to Brazil. Our year closed with a high feeling of regard toward class members and faculty advisors for our class accomplishments.

The last year of high school was upon us. Our freshman immaturity became senior maturity. We were ready to face the world with great enthusiasm and hope. The production of our last play, "Take Care of My Little Girl," and of the ELK brought again to us many honors and wide acclaim.

Laura Gianola, AFS student from Como, Italy, joined the class of '65 during our senior year. Laura brought to our class warmth and friendship and gave a broadening knowledge of her country.

The Class of 1965 can be proud for all of its accomplishments and honors. The doors to success are wide-open for each student. All members of the class are awaiting this opportunity. "We entered to learn, and now we go forth to serve."

Bob Cape wasn't dodging issues when he put this poster up in the hall at EHS. Because it was an election year, political spirit ran high with many heated debates as students presented their opinions in and out of class.

Sportsmanship, Character, and

Some of the mem ries seniors will have are recorded in photographs which Cheryl Seibert and Jane Strom look over while sorting them into categories for the annual "DLK staff picture sale," a sign of another school year completed

Patti Kexel and her Italian sister, Laura Gianola, shared many good times throughout the year. Both girls discover they like the same stuffed animal

Friendship

Each year a glimpse of the culture and customs of another land is brought to Elkhorn High School by an AFS student. This year from sunny Italy came Laura Gianola.

Readily identified by her warm smile and personality, Laura became active in school events. Chosen by her classmates, she served as a senior class representative for Homecoming festivities. She was also greatly honored by a surprise birthday party given by the senior class in October.

However, the activities of an AFS student are not confined to school alone. In response to community interest, Laura gave speeches to the many clubs and organizations of Elkhorn. Thus she created a greater understanding of her homeland and at the same time developed an appreciation of the American way.

And now as the year comes to a close and Laura departs for Italy, the students of EHS join in saying, "Arriverdence Laura. We will remember you always."

Laura proudly shows her class ring--a gift from the Senior Class--to her American family, Mr. and Mrs Ted Kexel and Patti.

Senior homemakers learn how to balance a weekly food budget. Linda Ring and Judy Dunham visit one of the local supermarkets to find out prices of different foods.

Milk testing is one of the many things a farmer has to know how to do. Bill Schulz prepares for his future in the agricultural field

In the Search

While some students may find jobs immediately after graduation, others will go into the service. Mike McCann studies pamphlets on future opportunities

One of the main decisions to be made by seniors is a choice of graduation announcements. Bil. Dowse, Dennis McKenna and Pete Palmer, senior class officers, help Kathy Welch make her decision.

The diploma is a final step in high school days. This document signified what "We've made it!"

for Tomorrow

Once again the time has come for graduation and Harvey the Invisible Rabbit takes his usual place in overseeing the event. He has guided Elkhorn's seniors carefully; with some outside help, of course, through four important years of their lives. He has watched them develop from uncertain Freshmen into confident young people ready to face the world with determination in reaching success. He has seen their interest expand and has noticed the changes that affect the various avenues their lives will take once they leave through the doors of EHS.

But in all of the graduates Harvey sees responsible citizens as a result of their education. The Invisible Rabbit is only too glad to help the Seniors through the many phases of graduation. Once that is over, his responsibility for them ends and he can spend a well-earned summer vacation in one of the abandoned desks in Mr. Thieleke's room--and wait for his new charges to assemble in the fall.

Curt Quass makes final adjustments on his cap before taking the final step down the long aisle which leads to the world.
